FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

Global equity markets were mostly positive for the month (as measured in US Dollars), with the MSCI World Index returning 2.1%. The MSCI USA index, which accounts for more than 60% of the world index returned 1.7%, the MSCI European Monetary Union Index returned 2.6% whilst the MSCI Japan Index returned 4.0%. The two index tracking funds the fund is invested in, the GinsGlobal Global Equity Index and GinsGlobal European Equity Index funds, returned in line with their benchmarks (2.1% and 2.6% respectively). The Xtrackers Emerging Markets ETF returned 1.8%. The Schroders ISF Global Recovery fund returned 4.2% whilst the Lodestar segregated mandate returned 0.8%.

Global Bonds were slightly weaker than cash as longer-term interest globally increased. The US 10-year Government Yield increased from 1.5% to 1.65% (bond prices move inversely to yields). The SPDR Bloomberg Barclays 1-3 Year US Treasury Bond ETF, which invests in short dated US debt, declined 0.1% whilst the Fidelity International Liquidity USD Fund, a money market fund, returned 0.2%.

MARKET COMMENTARY

The protracted US-China trade war had a seesaw effect, on both local and global markets, during September. Early in the month, equity markets and emerging economy currencies rallied on the expectation of a trade deal, when it was announced that a delegation of low-level officials from both countries will meet to discuss details around a possible deal. However, news that Democrats were launching an impeachment probe into President Trump unravelled the expectations of a deal. Consequently, equity markets reversed most of the gains made earlier in the month, but still managed to outperform bonds and cash.

The Federal Reserve's Open Market Committee decided to cut interest rates by 0.25% in response to a slowdown in global growth and the effect of the trade war. Fed Chair Jerome Powell promised to act appropriately should further economic developments require it. Elsewhere, the Bank of England, Bank of Japan and the European Central Bank kept rates unchanged at record lows (and negative in some cases).

Locally, Governor Kganyago announced that the Monetary Policy Committee decided that the repo rate will remain unchanged. The Committee judged that either a material slowdown in growth or an increase in inflation could cause interest to be cut or hiked respectively.
