FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY

September was another challenging month for investors with the primary culprit being the slew of global central bank meetings which generally underlined the prospect of higher-for-longer interest rates with lacklustre economic growth.

Furthermore, September is a month where numerous organizations and analysts release updated economic estimates. According to the OECD's latest outlook, the world economy fared better than anticipated in the first half of 2023 helped by lower energy prices and China's reopening. However, slower global growth is expected in the second half of 2023 and 2024 with stricter monetary policies, the return of rising energy prices, and a sluggish economic recovery in China all coming into play.

In the US, the more-hawkish Federal Reserve, surging crude oil prices and fears of increased supply of government debt drove the value of the US dollar and Treasury market yields higher. As a result, the FTSE WGBI USD Index ended down 3.2% for the month.

Locally, the South African Reserve Bank (SARB) kept the repo rate unchanged at 8.25%. However, the SARB reiterated that the recent currency devaluation and the spike in global oil prices remain a notable risk to the short-to medium-term inflation trajectory and as such, they have cautioned that the bank may need to tighten policy rates further if the economic data suggests it. As such, the FTSE/JSE All Bond Index (ALBI) was not immune to the global bond sell off, declining by 2.3%, with longer dated instruments (7-12+ Yrs) underperforming the shorter dated equivalents (1-3Yrs). Listed Property struggled ending down 4.1 (YTD: -5.3%) and remains the worst performing asset class YTD vs cash (+5.8%), equities (+2.2%) and bonds (1.4%).
